

MONTRÉUX TRIBUTE TO FREDDIE

MONTRÉUX: This small town located on the shores of Lake Geneva became famous around the world because of the 40 year old, well known Montreux Jazz Festival. In the 70s, David Richards ran a recording studio called The Mountain Studio where many famous musicians came to play and record their best albums and compositions: The Rolling Stones, David Bowie, Yes and many more... Queen took the opportunity to simply buy the recording studio in 1978. The band was so inspired by the natural beauty of the place and the surroundings, that they put this landscape on the cover of their last album with Freddie Mercury "Made in Heaven".

MONTRÉUXMUSIC: For nearly ten years, this non-profit association has aimed at enhancing the musical history of Montreux by organising various events such as the annual, much talked about "Freddie Mercury's Montreux Memorial Day". Within one of these events, in 2005, montreuxmusic produced a musical inspired by "We Will Rock You", called "The Show Must Go On" with young local talents. After the huge success of this show in a packed Miles Davies Hall, they collaborate again with two former members of the cast and now realise a different show, something more intimate.

THE PROJECT: Fabrice Pasche, for whom Freddie was a great inspiration, got the idea of a rough arrangement of some songs for only piano and voice. Renaud Delay added some strings and worked on the arrangements. That was how this emotional and sincere homage to Freddie was created, played for the first time in September 2008 in Montreux. Peter Freestone (Freddie's Personal Assistant), did not hesitate to point out he was absolutely sure Freddie would have loved and supported this project. As a result of this show, Jacky Smith (Queen International Fan club's president), invited the company to play at the 23rd Official Queen Fan Club UK Convention in March 2009. Furthermore, a UK tour is planned.

THE TRIBUTE: Blending a subtle mixture of Rock, Folk, Jazz and classical music, this journey into the large repertory of their idols comprises of splendid versions of the chosen songs including hits and rarities, to envelop us in the idyllic context where the songs have been created. We are reminded of how much Freddie loved Montreux – and how much Montreux does likewise !
